The business which the company will be authorized to do, as expressed in the act of Gonzress, will be a "security guaranty, indemnity, loan and mortware business." Within the limits of these powers it is purposed to act as surety on bonds, undertakings and other obligations required by law or by orders of court, and to do a guaranty and incemnity business. It is also proposed to lend money on mortgages, deeds of trust and other securities. The surety or security business will be transacted on a system and methods wa e-up from the best features of similar of ganzations in this country and in England, as d-which are the result of long experience and canade management. There is need of such an enterprise in this District. Corpora e suretyship is superior in every respect to that of ind viduals, and is, therefore, preferred by those for whose benefit the security is to be given, while on the other hand those who are required to furnish the security greatly prefer to see it as a matter of favor from friends.

To the stockholder this company presents substantial attractions. It is proceed to make investments in loans on ample real estate and other safe securities, and as the company's expenses will be comparatively light the shareholder may reasonably expect from the investment of its capital alone a return approximating what he might realize from a personal investment of the money represented by his stock, besides a participation in the commissions and premiums earned.

tion of his colleagues. He was regarded as a man of promise. He is a good, strong and effective speaker, and in the last campaign his work for the party gave him an excellent reputation as a stump speaker. He is an Irishman by birth and not yet forty years of age. He was brought to this country 2 at an early age and reared and educated in Jersev City, where he studied law under ex-Congressman Scudder. He has practiced law since 1874, but went into local and state and then into national politics, so that he has not acquired much legal reputation. In the House he trained with the Randall or protection wing of the democracy and was a favorite of the ex-Speaker of the House. He served on the naval committee during most of his congressional career and in this way gained considerable knowledge that will be of use to him in his future career. Through his committee membership he also became well acquainted with his future chief, Secretary He married a Virginia woman while still in Congress. He practiced law and has been a political speaker since he went out of Congress.
